

Stories of Faith from Ranching and Rodeo

Ranching and rodeo are two professions that are often associated with faith. The people who work in these fields often have a strong connection to the land and to the animals they care for. They also often have a deep faith in God, which helps them to face the challenges of their work.

Here are a few stories of faith from ranching and rodeo:

The Cowboy's Prayer

The Cowboy's Prayer is a popular prayer among cowboys and ranchers. It was written by an unknown author in the early 1900s. The prayer asks for God's protection and guidance, and it expresses the cowboy's dependence on God.

The Cowboy's Prayer has been recited by cowboys and ranchers for generations. It is a reminder of the deep faith that many people in these professions have.

The Rodeo Clown's Testimony

Rodeo clowns are often seen as the comic relief at rodeos. But many rodeo clowns also have a strong faith in God. One such rodeo clown is Dusty Tuckness.

Tuckness grew up in a Christian home, but he didn't become a Christian himself until he was in his early 20s. He was struggling with alcohol addiction at the time, and he felt like his life was spiraling out of control.

One day, Tuckness was invited to a church service. He went, and he heard a message that changed his life. He accepted Jesus Christ as his Savior that day, and his life was never the same.

Tuckness now uses his platform as a rodeo clown to share his faith with others. He travels all over the country, speaking at churches and events. He also has a ministry called Rodeo Church, which provides spiritual support to rodeo cowboys and cowgirls.

The Rancher's Testimony

Ranching is a tough business. The hours are long, the work is hard, and the weather can be unforgiving. But many ranchers find strength and support in their faith.

One such rancher is Jim Bob Hughes. Hughes is a third-generation rancher in Texas. He has been ranching all of his life, and he has seen his share of challenges.

But Hughes has always relied on his faith to get him through the tough times. He believes that God is in control, and he trusts that God will provide for him and his family.

Hughes is also a strong advocate for the ranching industry. He believes that ranching is a vital part of the American economy and way of life. He also believes that ranching is a good way to teach young people about responsibility and hard work.

The stories of faith from ranching and rodeo are a reminder that faith can be found in all walks of life. These stories are a testament to the power of God and the faithfulness of those who serve Him.
